When promoting your business online the use of attention grabbing and eye catching imagery to create engagement and recognition for your brand is of paramount importance.

Search engines such as Google reward businesses who are using original imagery over stock photos.

By using your own brand images of your staff, clients and products on social media you are breaking down the barriers between you and your ideal client thus creating a better relationship for the future.

Social media is changing the way businesses interact, even large corporations understand the value of using original imagery showing their staff members interacting with clients and customers.

Create that online connection with your clients and give your website and social media that personal touch.

About me

I am Jason Mitchell, a photographer helping corporate and personal brands in creating recognition and engagement with attention grabbing imagery. I specialise in high-quality images designed to ably support the marketing and advertising objectives of your business.

I continue to take photographs for PR and corporate clients as well as national and international press publications. Some of my recent clients include The National Lottery, Thomson Holidays, TGI Fridays, Bovis Homes, Anglian Home Improvements, Krispy Kreme Doughnuts, McCarthy and Stone and Victoria Secrets amongst others.

"My agency engaged Jason as the photographer for a recent roundtable event. Jason was absolutely fantastic from start to finish - he was very helpful on the day, making useful suggestions above and beyond the brief and ensuring photography during the event was as unobtrusive as possible. We received the images the day after the event, and they were brilliant."

BETH DUNMORE

Creative Content Direct, The Bright Agency

"Jason combines great talent with personality, the perfect combination for a solid working relationship. He understands the practicalities of each job – deadlines, subject matter and so on - but also brings his own expertise and flair so that the result is noticeably better than simply being on brief and on deadline."

CLARE SMITH

Director Bonce PR for the National Lottery

"I have had the pleasure of working with Jason on a number of corporate events at ABP. He's always been very reliable and professional and has a great attitude. The fact that he always sends through quality photos promptly after a function has taken place is particularly useful if one needs photos quickly, whether it's for a press release or marketing collateral."

PRESSIANA NAYDENOVA

Corporate Communications Advisor, Associated British Ports

"Jason was an excellent photographer, he arrived on time and was always friendly and professional. He gave clear instructions to all the people in the photographs and was great with kids. The photos were sent very quickly and I was very pleased with the quality and variety. Thank you "
